

Contributors

Kim Kyung-woong

An assistant secretary of the Korean Ministry of Unification, Kim is former research professor at the Institute for East Asian Studies of the Berlin Free University. He holds a B.A. from Hanyang University and an M.A. and a Ph.D in Political Science from the same university. He is the author of Political Education, and Political Socialization in North Korea, and wrote "A Socio-cultural Approach to South and North Korean Unification."

Hong Yang-ho

Currently, Director General of the Bureau for Policy Coordination for the Light-Water Reactor Project, he also served for the Korean Unification Ministry as a Director General of Bureau for Humanitarian Affairs. He holds an M.A. from the University of Georgia and a Ph.D. in Political Science from Dankook University. His major articles include "North Korea's Negotiation Behavior in the Post-cold War Era"; and "International Organization's Relief Efforts and Opening and Changes in North Korea."

Narushige Michishita

Research fellow at the National Institute for Defense Studies (NIDS), Japan Defense Agency, and visiting research fellow at the Institute for Far Eastern Studies of Kyungnam University. He holds a B.A. from the University of Tsukuba, Japan, and an M.A. from Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Relations (SAIS), Johns Hopkins University. Currently, he is a Ph.D. candidate at the SAIS. He edited Debating Japan's International Relations, Modern Strategy: Is War a Means of Politics? and The Japan-U.S. Alliance: New Challenges for the 21st Century, and has written many articles.

Bae Seong-in

A Research Fellow at the Institute for North Korean Studies, Myongji University, he holds a B.A. and an M.A. from the same university and a Ph.D. in Political Science from Dankook University. His area of specialization is North Korean politics, and he wrote "Recruitment and Characteristics of Kim Jong-il's Ruling Elite;" "The Dominant Discourse of the Kim Jong-il Regime;" "The Grain Shortage in North Korea: Internal-External Changes and New Directions," among others.

Yang Seung-yoon

Professor at Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, he is former president of the Korean Association of Southeast Asian Studies. He received his B.A. and M.A. from Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, and a Ph. D. in Political Science from Kyungnam University. Currently, he is teaching at Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia, as an invited professor. His major books include The History of Indonesia; Modern Indonesian Politics; and Southeast Asia and ASEAN.

Kim Young-hoon

A Research Fellow at the Korea Rural Economics Institute. He holds a Ph.D in Agricultural Economics from Korea University. His major articles include "A Comparative Analysis of the Agricultural Development Pattern: Korea and Japan, 1985." and "A Study of Farm Reorganization in Socialist Countries during the System Transition Period, 1998."