

Contributors

Kang In-duk

Former Unification Minister of Korea, director of the Institute for East Asian Studies, he holds an M.A. in Asian Politics from Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, and a Ph.D. in Politics from Kyunghee University. Author of Communism and the United Front: An Outline of Communism, and others. Based on his experience in inter-Korean dialogues, direct and indirect, he is now preparing a series of volumes titled Inter-Korean Negotiations. 1972-2000: A Comprehensive Historical Analysis.

Park Young-ho

Director of Unification Policy Studies at the Korea Institute for National Unification. He is also an adjunct fellow at the Hudson Institute, Washington, DC. He holds a B.A. and an M.A. in Political Science from Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, and a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Cincinnati. He is the author of The Relationships Among South and North Korea and the United States and Peaceful Coexistence on the Korean Peninsula; The Paradigm of International Politics and Regional Order, among others.

Oh Seung-ryul

Director of the Economic Cooperation Division, the Korea Institute for National Unification, he holds a B.A. from Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, and a Ph.D. in Economics from the Chinese University of Hong Kong. His areas of speciality are North Korean economy, Chinese economy and economic transition, and he authored Changes in Chinese Economy and its External Economic Policy (2001); and co-authored North Korean Economic Reform and Inter-Korean Cooperation (2001).

Jo Dong-ho

Director of the Department of North Korean Economic Studies, Korea Development Institute, and concurrently, Special Advisor of the Division for Inter-Korean Cooperation, he holds a B.A. and an M.A. from Seoul National University, and a Ph.D. in Economics from University of Pennsylvania. He wrote "Productivity and Optimum Wage Levels of North Korean Workers," "An Estimation of Unification Benefits," and "A Study on Strategies to Develop the North Korean Economy."

Chung Hae-kwan

As the Deputy Director of the Multilateral Trade Cooperation Division, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, and formerly Deputy Director of Asia-Pacific Trade Division, Chung Hae-kwan has worked in the multilateral trade area for a long time, such as WTO dispute settlement cases and the Free Trade Agreement. He holds a B.A. from Seoul National University, and an L.L.M. from George Washington Law School. He recently wrote "Progressive Interpretation of Article VIII section 2(b) of the International Monetary Fund Agreement."

Chung Oh-young

Director of the Research Team on Northeast Asia at the Federation of Korean Industries, and formerly a research fellow at Hyundai Research Institute, he holds an M.A. from Waseda University and a Ph.D. in Economics from Chuo University. His major articles include "Comparing Financial Clearance System between South and North Korea" (1999) and "A Guide to Trade and Investment to North Korea" (2000).